Summary (from the publisher):

Can you change your fate—and the fate of those you love—if you return to the past? Journey to 1939 Harlem in this time-travel adventure with an inspiring message about believing in yourself.

Eleven-year-old Ailey Benjamin Lane can dance—so he’s certain that he’ll land the role of the Scarecrow in his school’s production of The Wiz. Unfortunately, a talented classmate and a serious attack of nerves derail his audition: he just stands there, frozen. Deflated and defeated, Ailey confides in his Grampa that he’s ready to quit. But Grampa believes in Ailey, and, to encourage him, shares a childhood story. As a boy, Grampa dreamed of becoming a tap dancer; he was so good that the Hollywood star and unofficial Mayor of Harlem, Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, even gave him a special pair of tap shoes. Curious, Ailey finds the shoes, tries them on, taps his toes, and makes a wish. In the blink of an eye, he finds himself somewhere that is definitely no place like home! Featuring an all-African-American cast of characters, and infused with references to black culture and history, this work of magical realism is sure to captivate and inspire readers.

Writing

Using this book as a mentor text for:

Dialogue--Have students choose a page or two in the book that includes a lot of dialogue. Have students read the dialogue aloud and analyze it. What does the dialogue reveal about character? How does it reveal information about plot? How does it reveal voice? What other things make dialogue distinctive in this book?

Sensory Language--Take a look at Chapter 9. Reread it for sensory language. What senses does the author use to make the scene feel real? Have students look at a current story they are writing. Are there places they could include sensory language? Have them pick a sense to add to their drafts. For students who need a little extra challenge, have them pick a sense that isn’t sight to add to their draft.

Figurative Language--This book is full of great examples of figurative language. For example: “Ailey moved like a fly to a flytrap—zzzzip.” (p. 44, Chapter 6). Have students pay attention to the similes throughout the book. Have them brainstorm similes they could use in their own writing.
